Catholic Bishops in Australia want to make the Bible relevant to young people. Cardinal George Pell and Cardinal Stanislaw Rylko spoke this week about how to increase a sense of cultural relevancy for today's world.

Cardinal Pell, the recent host for World Youth Day suggested five ways in which Bishops can make this possible:

1. Form young adult lay teams to witness in youth groups, schools and universities
2. Expound the Gospel through drama that would be the equivalent of the medieval Mystery Plays
3. Use social networking sites more effectively for Biblical study
4. Work quicker and harder on making the Scriptures available in more languages
5. Encourage the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith to produce guidelines on the inerrancy of Scripture
